

A Curriculum for Excellence

The 'A Curriculum for Excellence' session is a 2 hour virtual INSET led by Rob Carpenter, CEO and Trust Leader of the Inspire Partnership. This session covers a variety of themes designed to support school leaders in planning curriculum priorities and meeting the needs of all learners. In this session, we will share the Inspire Partnership model of global learning, incorporating core texts, key knowledge and the essential character skills required to thrive in a modern complex society.

You will be encouraged to extend thinking around the social nature of learning and the need to ensure collaboration is placed more centrally within the learning journey. The session will also support schools in planning for high quality outcomes across the curriculum areas, as well as in core subjects.

Focus topics of this session include:

- Reframing the purpose of education
- The domains of learning and why this matters
- A global curriculum for equity and excellence: the specifics

Following the international crisis created by Covid-19 and the death of George Floyd in America, we believe now more than ever, schools need to engage in designing a curriculum which helps pupils 'meet the world'. Come and join us for this session and be part of a movement to reframe what matters most in learning for life and learning for meaning.
